

Feedback on the project team's concept for publication of the project outputs

This publication proposal has my support. The idea is that a website should be developed, with two functions – to help disseminate ECML publications and activities, and to improve the networking among teachers' associations (with ideas on innovation and relevance of activities). This will be accompanied by a brochure (like the blue one about the ECML) with a folder so that information about projects or association activities can be inserted. The main remaining issue is to work out how the continuity and updating of the website can be managed after the end of the project.
